Constantine is one of the oldest cities in all of Africa. It is famous for the geography of the city that makes the city one of a kind in the world and a must-visit if you're in Algeria. With its eight bridges that connect the two parts of the city across the 2KM/1.2mile long Rhumel Gorge with a breathtaking height of 120m/394 feet on average, and the highest point being 175/574 meters tall cliffs that splits the city into two. The best thing to do in Constantine is just to explore the city by foot, even though, it's Algeria's 3rd biggest city after Algiers and Oran, Constantine is compact enough to walk around and explore.
